NEW AMBASSADOR TO CUBA PRESENTS CREDENTIALS

Havana GRANMA in Spanish 10 Nov 81 p 3

[Article by Rolando Meneses]

[Text] Ambassador of the People's Republic of Mongolia Gombosurenguin Dashdavaa, who has just presented his credentials to the Cuban Government, has given his first press conference, which coincided with the 60th anniversary of the signing of the first Soviet-Mongolian friendship treaty.

He noted that that treaty, signed on 5 November 1921 between the Revolutionary Mongolian Government and Soviet Russia, has had a historic significance for the destinies of the Mongolian people and the development and reinforcement of our fraternal relations.

After speaking of the development of his country in all fields, Dashdavaa condemned the activities of Yankee imperialism and Beijing's domination of others. He mentioned the efforts of the Mongolian People's Revolutionary Party, the Great Hural and President Yumjaagiyn Tsedenbal to promote nonintervention and discourage the use of force with an eye to guaranteeing peace.

He expressed his solidarity and that of his country with Cuba at this time of Yankee imperialist threats and acts of aggression. "Our people," he said, "are informed about everything that is happening in this part of the world and they raise their voices in active solidarity with Cuba, its government and its people."

ERDENET MINING COMPLEX DEVELOPMENT OUTLINED

Moscow GORNYY ZHURNAL in Russian No 9, Sep 81 pp 15-18

[Article by Candidate of Technical Sciences R. I. Semigin, general director of the Erdenet Joint Mongolian-Soviet Mining and Concentration Combine: "The Modern Erdenet Mining and Concentration Enterprise Is the Creation of Mongolian-Soviet Friendship"]

[Text] The building of the large Erdenet industrial complex, the first in the history of the MPR, is of enormous political and socioeconomic importance. With the bringing up of the mining and concentration combine to the full rated capacity the total volume of industrial output, the national income and the financial and export resources of the country will increase considerably, which will be a decisive factor of the assurance of the increase of the standard of living of the Mongolian people. It will be another important step in the direction of the accomplishment of the program goal of the MPRP of transforming the MPR into an industrial-agrarian country.

The grand construction site of the Erdenet enterprise is a vivid demonstration of the mighty creative force of inviolable Mongolian-Soviet friendship and convincing evidence of the implementation of the comprehensive program of the further intensification and improvement of the cooperation and the development of the socialist economic integration of the CEMA member countries.

Guided by the principles of the comprehensive program of the further intensification and improvement of the cooperation and the development of the socialist economic integration of the CEMA member countries and taking into account the importance of the development of the mining industry for the MPR economy and the mutual interest of the MPR and the USSR in the output of concentrates of nonferrous metals, the USSR Government and the MPR Government signed an agreement on the construction in the MPR of the Erdenet Mongolian-Soviet joint mining and concentration enterprise (Figure 1 [Photo not reproduced]) on the basis of the Erdenetiyn-Oboo copper and molybdenum deposit. When brought up to full capacity 16 million tons of ore will be mined and processed a year at the combine with the output of more than 118,000 tons of copper and 1,000 tons of molybdenum in concentrates.

The deposit is a large stockwork which was formed in granodiorite-porphyrries and in part in the granodiorites which surround them. The dimensions of the mining zone in a plane are 2,500 X 1,300 m, it has been prospected in depth to 400 m. Vertical zonality in the distribution of mineralization is distinctly displayed at the deposit. At the surface a leaching zone 10-90 m thick occurs, then there is a zone of secondary sulfide concentration, in which 86 percent of the proven reserves of copper are contained. A zone of primary sulfide ores is situated below. The Protod'yakonov coefficient of strength of the rock and ores is 8-12.

The comprehensive engineering plan of the joint enterprise was drawn up in a very short time--18 months--by the State Institute for the Planning of Enterprises of Nonferrous Metallurgy (the general designer) with the enlistment of more than 40 specialized planning, scientific research and surveying organizations of the USSR and the MPR. The stages and phases of the geological prospecting, engineering surveys, scientific research, designing and construction of the facilities were combined for the assurance of the placement of the enterprise into operation in the shortest possible time. Advanced design and layout decisions, new flow charts and large-scale highly productive equipment were used in the plan, which made it possible to reduce considerably the structural volume of the industrial buildings.

The extensive use of automatic control systems and computer hardware: the automatic control systems of technological transport at the open-cut mine (the Karat Automatic Control System), of technological processes at the concentration factory (the Fabrika Automatic Control System of Technological Processes), of the power supply of the enterprise (the Energo Automatic Control System) and of the enterprise (the Automatic Control System of the Enterprise), is envisaged at the enterprise.

The favorable geological mining conditions of the occurrence of the copper-molybdenum ores of the Erdenet-Oboo deposit dictated the highly efficient open-cut method of mining the ore, for which machines and equipment conforming to the best world examples are envisaged: EKG-8I excavators, SBSH-250MN drills, DET-250 tractor-based bulldozers, BelAZ-548A dump trucks with subsequent changeover to BelAZ-549 dump trucks (Figure 2 [Photo not reproduced]).

The version of lateral progress cycles from east to west and a height of the mining and overburden terraces of 15 m have been adopted for the working of the deposit. The overburden ratio for the deposit as a whole is $0.59 \text{ m}^3/\text{m}^3$, while for the first 10 to 12 years of operation it is $0.87 \text{ m}^3/\text{m}^3$.

The All-Union Scientific Research Institute of the Mechanical Processing of Minerals (Leningrad) for the processing of 16 million tons of ore a year designed the concentration factory (Figure 3 [Photo not reproduced]) with allowance made for the modern design decisions of similar enterprises in the USSR and abroad. The plan envisages complete recirculating water supply, a high coefficient of movement of equipment and a high labor productivity as a result of the automation of the main conversions of the concentration factory, the use of large-scale highly productive equipment, a high organization of labor, the mechanization of repair work and the centralized repair of basic equipment.

The planned flow chart of the concentration factory includes: the crushing of the ore in three stages from a size of 1,000 mm to 12 (15) mm, the one-pass reduction in ball mills in a closed cycle with hydraulic cyclones to a fineness of 65 percent of the grade of 0.074 mm, the bulk flotation with two purifications of the regulus concentrate and the further reduction in ball mills of the concentrate of the first purification and commercial products, the flotation of the sandy portion of the tailings of the control flotation, the steaming of the bulk concentrate in a calciferous medium, the differential flotation of the bulk concentrate with the obtaining of copper and molybdenum concentrates, the condensation, filtration and drying of the concentrates (Figure 4 [Photo not reproduced]).

The tail pulp of the concentration factory during the first 10 to 15 years will move by gravity to the tailings dump. The clarified water of the tailings dump is sent through runoff pits and a collecting main to the pumping station of the recirculating water supply system, from which it is fed by the pumps into the reservoirs of recirculating water of the concentration factory.

The use of the following compounds as flotation agents is envisaged: lime, butyl xanthate, sodium sulfide, kerosene, pine oil, water glass and sodium sulfate.

Highly productive technological equipment, which was produced in the Soviet Union, has been installed at the concentration factory: KMD-3000T cone-type fine crushers, GSM-72M heavy-duty self-balancing screens with a sifting area of 15 m², conveyors 800 m long with a rubber rope belt, MShTs-5.5 X 6.5 ball mills (Figure 5 [Photo not reproduced]) with a capacity of 140 m³, FPM-12.5 pneumatic flotation machines, condensers 50 m in diameter with central drive, DU-100-2.5 vacuum filters, TsN-3000 pumps for the pumping of the recirculating water.

According to its technical and economic indicators, provision with modern equipment, level of mechanization and automation of production processes and labor productivity the Erdenet enterprise is the largest mining and concentration complex in Asia. The technical and economic calculations have shown the great profitability of the enterprise and the short payback period of the capital investments (9 years).

The construction of the enterprise and the city of Erdenet was begun in 1974 at a stepped-up pace. More than 14,000 people, who were united into collectives of 20 construction trusts, worked simultaneously at the different projects.

In 2 years a highway and railroad, an electric power transmission line, a construction industry base and residential settlements of the construction workers were built, work on the construction of the open-cut mine was begun. This made it possible during the next 3 years to complete for the most part the construction of the industrial complex of the enterprise, which consists of the open-cut mine, the concentration factory, a machinery repair plant, auxiliary shops and all the engineering pipelines. Housing for 15,000 residents and social and personal facilities were built at the same time.

Advanced construction materials and plant-produced metal structural members were used: cast in situ and precast reinforced concrete, metal structural members for the light-weight frames of all the production buildings, shaped galvanized steel planking for the roofing, light-weight three-ply steel panels for the walls. Large panel structural members were used in the construction of housing and social, cultural and personal facilities. All this reduced considerably the labor and material expenditures on construction.

It is possible to judge the scale of construction from the following data: 180 cities of the Soviet Union participated in the building of the enterprise; machines and devices, materials and equipment were received from 462 supply enterprises of the USSR. The collective of construction workers during the most intensive period of construction performed in a day construction and installation work worth

1.7 million tugriks, installed 250 tons of metal structural members, produced 1,200 m³ of ready-mix concrete and so on.

The early placement into operation of the first and subsequent sections of the Erdenet enterprise was the result of the dedicated labor of the international collective of workers and construction workers of the Med'molibdenstroy Construction Administration. The output of commodity production—copper and molybdenum concentrate—was begun in December 1978 after the placement into operation of the first section of the enterprise.

Much organizing work on the assimilation of the rated capacities and the early achievement of the plan indicators was done in a short time. The rated capacities of the first section were assimilated in 7 months instead of 11 months in accordance with the standards. Under the conditions of the operating concentration factory the installation of the equipment of the second section, which was turned over by the 110th anniversary of the birth of V. I. Lenin and was also assimilated ahead of time, proceeded with the close cooperation of the construction workers and the operators. At present the capacities of the third and fourth sections are being successfully assimilated.

The high quality of the design decisions and the performed construction, installation, start-up and adjustment work is one of the important factors of the successful assimilation of the rated capacities for the output of nonferrous metals. Moreover, the readying for operation of this complicated complex, which is equipped with highly productive equipment and with an advanced progressive processing method, was carried out at the same time as the construction. Operating specialists took part in the work of the groups for the acceptance of the constructed projects and in the comprehensive tests of the technological equipment and drew up the instructional and standard documents. Here special attention was devoted to the training and staffing of the shops and services with Mongolian and Soviet specialists.

By the start of operation of the enterprise 1,286 Mongolian specialists had been trained, 560 of them studied in the USSR. By the same period more than 800 different highly skilled Soviet specialists were sent to the MPR.

A set of organizational and technical measures on the achievement of the rated technological indicators, the assimilation of the capacities of the equipment and the economical consumption of basic materials, power and water was elaborated and implemented in the shops of the combine in a little more than 2 years.

At the open-pit mine the establishment of a specialized blast-hole drilling section, which was provided with equipment for the mechanized delivery of the explosives and the charging of the holes, and the use of multirow short-delay blasting with a lateral cut made it possible to decrease the number of blasts to four a month and the specific consumption of explosives to 0.47 kg/m³.

The provision of the excavators with a nondeclining month's supply of blasted rock, their minimum runs, the increase of the coefficient of filling of the bucket to 1 and the shortening of the time to load a dump truck to 1.5 minutes and less made it possible in 1980 to achieve a productivity of excavators per m³ of the bucket to 218,000 m³ and in the first quarter of 1981 to increase it per year to 243,000 m³.

As a result of the crew organization of labor in the operation of the BelAZ-548 dump trucks, the division of the labor of the brigade of fitters and their material interest, the increase of the height of the terraces to 60 m with the use of a protective embankment the productivity of the dump trucks per registered truck ton in 1980 was 24,500 ton-kilometers.

At the concentration factory the diagrams of the bulk and differential flotation, filtration and drying of the concentrate, as well as the diagram of the preparation and pumping of the flotation agents were improved. The express determination of the content of copper and molybdenum in the ore and the products of concentration by means of the KRF-18 and KRF-13 analytic units was assimilated. In the process of assimilating the technological equipment the quality was improved, the time of the preparation and the performance of repair work was shortened, foundry work is being assimilated.

At the enterprise priority importance is being attached to the organization of socialist competition. There are 20 shops and subdivisions, 43 sections, 119 international brigades and 40 "Nayramdal-Druzhba" crews taking part in the competition (Figure 6 /Photo not reproduced/). International youth brigades, shifts and crews have been set up. A special place is being assigned to the development of tutorship between Soviet and Mongolian specialists, which made it possible in the shortest possible time to train Mongolian specialists for work at the enterprise.

At present in the modern international collectives many Mongolian specialists have achieved high indicators. Thus, the brigade of excavator operators consisting of M. G. Galejev, N. Namjildorj and J. Aajim in 1980 unloaded with an EKG-8I excavator 1,677,000 m³ of rock; the drilling brigade of D. Jargalsayhan drilled 64,613 m of holes.

At the open-pit mine and at the concentration factory the majority of Mongolian workers are working independently, having mastered the occupations of excavator operator, drill operator, bulldozer driver, flotation worker, operators of crushers, conveyors, mills and others. At present, of the total number of those working at the combine 55 percent are Mongolian specialists. As a result of the work that has been done the young international collective of the Erdenet combine in a short time has made significant gains (see the table).
